

INTERNET SAFETY NIGHT

Social Media and Internet Safety Resources

C Information for Parents

These sites will help you teach your kids to be safe and responsible users of the Internet, social media, and personal technology.

Center on Media and Child Health

(www.cmch.tv)

This partnership between Children's Hospital Boston, Harvard Medical School, and the Harvard School of Public Health has a database of research and also offers tips and resources for parents to help their families use media in a healthy manner.

Common Sense Media

(www.commonsensemedia.org)

This site reviews websites and other media for children and rates them according to their age-appropriateness. You'll also find advice for parents about cell phones, gaming, and more.

ConnectSafely

(www.connectsafely.org)

This site has tips, advice, the latest news, and blogs about the online world and its effect on children and teenagers. It also hosts a forum for parents and kids who want to bring their questions and concerns to experts.

Cyberbullying Research Center

(www.cyberbullying.org)

Research and tips for parents on dealing with and preventing cyberbullying. They also provide contact information for reporting cyberbullying to Internet, social media, and mobile service providers.

CyberTipline

(www.missingkids.com/cybertipline)

Make a report of online sexual exploitation through this service of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

iKeepSafe

(www.ikeepsafe.org)

This site has many resources for parents, educators, and policymakers who teach youth how to use new media devices and platforms in safe and healthy ways.

NetFamilyNews

(www.netfamilynews.org)

The "community newspaper" for Internet safety. The site features news and information about online safety and privacy, new Web resources for children, research about how kids use the Internet, and more.

SchoolFamily.com

(www.schoolfamily.com/internet-safety)

Articles, downloadables, and other resources on Internet safety for parents.

Trend Micro

(www.trendmicro.com/internetsafety)

Lots of information on Internet safety for families from Trend Micro, the sponsor of Internet Safety Night.

Trend Micro Blog

(<http://internetsafety.trendmicro.com>)

A good source for timely advice on issues, technologies, and laws that affect kids online.

Search Engines and Research Websites for Kids

These sites will help children use the Web more safely.

AllSafeSites

(www.allsafesites.com)

A child-safe Internet search engine.

American Library Association's Great Websites for Kids

(<http://gws.ala.org>)

A comprehensive list by subject area of child-safe websites.

KidsClick!

(www.kidsclick.org)

This site, owned and run by the School of Library and Information Science at San Jose State University, was created by librarians to offer children a safe way to search for information online.

KidzSearch

(www.kidzsearch.com)

A Google-based kid-safe search engine.

Sponsored by

Presented by

